

WOODBURY

SCHOOL of BUSINESS

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to highly recommend Sam Lindsey. I know Sam primarily as his instructor for Business Presentations at Utah Valley University, though we also crossed paths professionally while I was consulting at Green House Sales & Marketing.

What impressed me most about Sam wasn't just his straight As, but the grit he showed to earn them. He viewed every project as an opportunity to improve, constantly pushing against his own limits rather than just meeting the syllabus requirements. He took ownership of his growth in my class, turning his weaknesses into strengths through sheer determination. Watching his skills, organization, and confidence transform by the end of the semester was genuinely impressive. It's rare to see an undergraduate with that level of maturity and a relentless drive to just get better.

While I wasn't his direct supervisor at Green House and only interacted with him occasionally, it was obvious that the exact same work ethic carried over to his day job. The intrinsic motivation that pushed him to master his presentations is the same engine driving his professional growth. He takes absolute ownership of his responsibilities and approaches his work with a consistently positive, dependable attitude.

Sam is the kind of person you want on your team—someone who combines academic discipline with a real, hands-on desire to grow and tackle complex projects. He already carries himself like someone ready for greater responsibility, and I am confident he will be a fantastic addition to your company.

Please feel free to reach out if you have follow-up questions or would like to speak in person.

Sincerely,
